

Evelyn is a budding public historian interested in exploring the historical intersection between consumer goods and the social construction of identity. She holds a bachelor's degree in History and Sociology from Arizona State University, and is about to obtain her master's degree in Museum and Exhibition Studies from the University of Illinois at Chicago. Aside from her academic work, Evelyn is also a self-proclaimed crazy cat lady.